DeVry University, with locations throughout the U.S, adopted a new technology standard for their computer labs. The Enwork Studio team worked together with facilities, IT and campus design to identify functional needs and visual intent. The result led to a new platform of laptop line of sight tables, complete with power integrated modesty panels, quick release hardware for IT access, a convenience outlet for each user, soft-close locking laptop lids, flat modernist feet and a kit-o-parts that can be reconfigured to create study carols.
